TACTILE FINISHES

"Mixing finishes is a timeless trend! Brass and bronze have been industry favorites for quite some time, but I can't get enough of the latest additions, including texture-rich plaster, matte black, cement and antiqued silver."

70'S STYLE

"From the runway to interiors, designers are bringing the '70s back. I am seeing warm hues, vibrant colors, and the mix of bold patterns with geometrics, animal prints, checkers, and plaids being used in textiles. I also anticipate more creativity with shape and form across all market categories—something I've been craving for a while!"

The designers will shop the showrooms at market, highlight some of their favorite picks of market visually on our Instagram Takeover, #ViewOnVegas @LasVegasMarket, and then will discuss their posts and favorite items at the event. During the presentation, they will describe the items, why they were selected, what trends are emerging and how they would incorporate into a room. A complete list of all the designers' selections, along with showroom locations, will be provided at the close of the seminar so attendees can see all the Ahead of The Curve resources first-hand. (0.15 CEU)

BRONZE IS THE NEW BRASS

"It was inevitable, but the glamour of polished brass is slowly being surpassed by a raw and less refined, honed-bronze finish. It's a stronger, more confident look. We think it looks amazing on everything, from the plane of a coffee table, to a crisp-edge millwork detail and decorative home accessory."

NATURE-INSPIRED ACCESSORIES

"I'm seeing a movement toward statement pieces that singularly carry a space. As we are craving softer living and clean, chic interiors, peaceful art that does not overwhelm a room is trending. These pieces possess organic appeal and naturally spark intrigue—making them both meaningful, focal point accessories in the home."and Commonwealth."
